other publications. The Internet Archive allows the public to upload and download digital material to its online collections but the majority of its data is collected automatically by its web archiving software which works to preserve as much of the public web as possible. Its web archive, the Wayback Machine contains hundreds of billions of web captures.

2. We have been requested by Birnberg Peirce to answer the following questions;

each answer is given in italics below each question.

Question 1

archive.org hosts many historical versions of the WikiLeaks website and publications. This includes both website snapshots on the Wayback Machine

(collected by archive.org and potentially others) as well as user-uploaded items indicated by the uploading users as copies of WikiLeaks publications. The following examples are given of the above. Can you confirm this?

https://archive.org/details/wikileaksarchive

https://archive.org/details/wikileaks-cables-csv

https://archive.org/details/wikileaks-archive

https://archive.org/details/Archivelt-Collection-2017 (companion to collection on Internet Archive sister site archive-it.org: https://archive-it.org/collections/2017

Answer 1

I confirm the above, that as described, historical versions including website snapshots and copies of WikiLeaks publications and user-posted items indicated as copies of Wikileaks publications are held including the examples given.

Question 2

Can you confirm that the US Government has not attempted to have this data taken down?

A notary public or other officer completing this certificate verifies only the identity of the individual who signed the document to which this certificate is attached, and not the truthfulness, accuracy, or validity of that document.

(C.J. Act, 1967 s.9; M.C. Act 1980, s.102, M.C. Rules, 1981, r.70)

Answer 2

After a check of readily available records I find no instance of our having received such a request.

Question 3

Can you confirm that archive.org is a US based institution?

Answer 3

As is clear from the address above, this is confirmed.

A notary public or other officer completing this certificate verifies only the identity of the individual who signed the document to which this certificate is attached, and not the truthfulness, accuracy, or validity of that document.
